A Sister's Affection.

When the army of the Potomac made its advance, a few days since, a member of the Twenty-first New York regiment picked up a copy of the Richmond Examiner, of the previous week, from which we clip the following touching incident:

One of those affecting incidents occurred at the departure of the Yankee prisoners for New Orleans that, whether concerning friends or foes, must move the stoneless heart. A young lady, of Northern birth, but who had been for some time a resident of this State, and, having a lucrative occupation, preferred to remain here after the war broke out, discovered, by some means, that her brother was among the prisoners in the city. She had made several ineffectual applications and attempts to see him. Owing to the necessity of military law in such a case, her most urgent request had been refused. For some weeks the poor girl had been too unwell to leave her home, but was recovering, and sitting by the window just as the prisoners passed by, on their way to the depot.

An impression seized her that her brother was among them, though a separation of several years and the difference of dress and circumstances rendered recognition difficult. A misgiving, however—one of those impulses of the heart that is not to be stifled—caused her to start to her feet, and hastily throwing on her shawl and bonnet, she summoned a friend and hurried to the depot. There the guard was so watchful and the line so strict, that she was unable to approach within ten yards; but with straining eyes and anxious love, did the poor girl endeavor to scrutinize each probable form, until a mutual gaze met hers, and revealed the object of her search. Her brother recognized her. Darting forward, but repulsed by the guard, each precious moment threatened to sever them, perhaps forever, who can judge of the agony of the poor, stricken girl! Some of the bystanders becoming interested in the scene, used their influence to have a message conveyed to the prisoner. "Oh! is there anything I can do for him, anything he wants?" she exclaimed. But the wants of the prisoner were few. With loss of liberty, what else could avail him? "Take him this," she said, "it is all I have in the world;" and she handed him a small, a very small packet. So they passed a few dollar bills to the prisoner, with some small change, not knowing whether the poor boy would ever find any need for it, or an opportunity to spend it.

Soon the cars were ready. Open cars, with seats arranged upon them, and a boarding round the edge for security. He took his seat with the rest, in full view of his sobbing sister, and the cars began to slowly move. With an irresistible impulse she darted forward. Sympathy governed stronger than law the crowd who were watching the departure; an opening was made through the guard, and she reached his hand. One grasp, so firm, so tight, was fastened on the hand that she was drawn along the track. As the quickening motion of the engine was bearing her long absent brother yet further from her presence, and not until her arm well nigh strained from her body, and the poor prisoner as he leaned himself toward her, was in danger of being dragged from the car, could that long loving grasp be loosened.

The Jacksonville Sentinel well says:

"Whenever a newspaper or journal becomes dangerous to the public peace and welfare, whenever it pursues a course calculated to the public tranquility and to produce disorder and anarchy, then it is not only the right but the duty of Government to suppress the poisonous publication. Ought the father to recognise the libertine's right of free speech in his own house and amidst his own daughters? Ought the parent to sit still and out of regard to freedom of speech hear his own son taught the damning lessons of disobedience to parental authority? He who can answer these questions in the affirmative, can well afford to grumble at the acts of the Government in denying certain papers the ordinary mail facilities."

A general order from the Adjutant General's office at Washington, dismisses from the service of the U. S., Capt. Beverly H. Robertson, 2d cavalry, and Lt. W. T. Walker, ordnance department, on proof of their disloyalty. Lt. Walker is a son-in-law of Gen. Adair, ex-Collector of Astoria.

Jones wonders how Mrs. Jones can be so unreasonable as to expect a person (possibly Jones) to "be up with the lark," after being up with the mosquitoes till 4 P. M.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save

THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 28, 1861.

☞ Some interesting articles will be found on the first and last pages of this paper.

"An Honest Man."

In the Advertiser of yesterday morning we find some extracts from the Puget Sound Herald, with this head and introduction:

"An Honest Man."

"It is seldom an editor is called upon to acknowledge a courtesy from a brother editor. We take peculiar delight in furnishing our readers with the following truthful and outspoken sentiments of Mr. Prosch, the editor of the Puget Sound Herald, in regard to ourself and the Advertiser. He is more particularly deserving of credit from the fact that his brother Republicans are decrying him for the reason that he will not join with them in the hue and cry against our paper. We think, however, that Mr. Prosch and ourself too, will outlive the curs who are now barking at our heels."

The Advertiser having thus certified to Mr. Prosch's honesty and courtesy, we copy from his paper of the 12th of September, the character he gives of George L. Curry, as editor of the Advertiser.

Let "Honest Men" Read:

"Now we have too much faith in the intelligence of the editor of the Advertiser, to believe that he is sincere when he endorses every paragraph he copies which casts a censure upon the Administration or upon the Republican party for the existing deplorable state of affairs. We cannot believe that he is sincere when he charges upon President Lincoln the unnatural war now raging, nor can we believe that his head and heart at all times sanction the dirty work of his hands. He knows that neither Crittenden's Compromise, nor any other compromise that could have been framed, however humiliating it might have been to the North, could have averted the stroke that has fallen upon the country. He knows that the rebellion was commenced before Lincoln assumed the reins of Government, and that its inception dates far in advance of the Administration of Buchanan. He knows that Lincoln seeks only the preservation and perpetuity of the Union, though he would fain persuade his readers that the President and his party aim at its destruction. He knows that no compromise now, on any terms, much less 'on just and honorable terms,' can restore peace to the country short of a dissolution of the Union. He knows that the dissolution of the Union was and is the end and aim of certain of the Southern States, and that nothing short of the accomplishment of that diabolical object will satisfy them.

All these things and many more of the same purport, are as well known to the editor of the Advertiser as they are to every man, woman, and child of ordinary intelligence that reads the current of events. But he publishes a paper of the most violent party stripe, hostile to the Administration and wedded to its opponents. His trade is to give a false coloring to all the acts of his political opponents; to pervert facts and truths, and practice the most despicable chicanery on all occasions. This is the trade of all party editors, as well as the business of professional politicians generally. Some, however, carry their political warfare to extremes; others are restrained by conscientious scruples. Our friend of the Advertiser is restrained by no scruples; in politics he has no conscience. No matter how gross the falsehood, so long as it favors his party, he has no hesitation in vouching for its truthfulness, while knowing its falsity. This he believes to be the duty of party writers and party organs; we are aware that parties expect it of their organs, at least to some extent."

Stand up! George L. Curry, and listen to your own witness, and who you are ready to swear IS "AN HONEST MAN!" He says you are a liar, and he specifies the particular character of your lies. He says that every man, woman, and child, of ordinary intelligence, know you lie! He says your trade is lying! He says you are restrained by no scruple; no conscience! No matter how gross the falsehoods are, you are ready to vouch for their truth!

Recollect we do not say this—but your own witness, who you vouch IS "AN HONEST MAN," says it—and prints it, too, and scatters it over the land.

Now, Curry, look at your political character, as given by YOUR "HONEST MAN," "and then to supper with what appetite you may!"

"HONEST MAN!" "I thank thee Jew, for teaching me that word."

Disapproval of the Appointment of Benj. Stark as United States Senator.

SALEM, Nov. 21st. 1861.

Pursuant to notice, the citizens of Salem met at the Court House at half past six o'clock P. M., to consider the appointment of Benj. Stark as United States Senator. Hon. R. P. Boise was elected Chairman and L. Heath chosen Secretary. On motion, E. N. Cooke, H. Gordon, J. C. Peebles, E. Williams, and C. N. Terry, were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of this meeting; whereupon the committee retired to prepare resolutions.

In absence of the committee, a speech was made by J. G. Wilson.

The committee reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Benj. Stark, who has been appointed a United States Senator, from the State of Oregon, is known to us from his often repeated sentiments, to be opposed to the vigorous prosecution of the war against insurgent and revolted States; and in favor of the recognition of the so-called Confederate States, and also in favor of establishing on this coast a separate Government, and, therefore, an enemy of the United States to whose councils he is appointed. Therefore be it,

Resolved, That he does not represent the true interests or sentiments of the people of Oregon, a large majority of whom are loyal, ready and willing to support and maintain the Government to the last extremity in putting down the present rebellion, and bringing to justice the wicked and reckless men who have wantonly undertaken the overthrow of the best Government that ever blessed mankind.

Resolved, That for the violation of the known will of the people of Oregon involved in this appointment, we hold Gov. Whiteaker less responsible than the Judicial functionary in whose hands the Executive is as "clay in the hands of the potter."

Resolved, That the Secretary forward a copy of these resolutions, properly attested, to Gen. Nesmith, at Washington.

On motion, adjourned.

R. P. BOISE, Ch'n.

LUCIEN HEATH, Sec'y.

What was Democracy once—and is Now.

In August (4th) 1835 AMOS KENDALL, was Post-master-General under President Jackson. In reply to a communication from the Postmaster of Charleston, S. C., after saying that the laws may not justify the exclusion of matter from the mails, used the following language in regard to the duties of Postmasters at offices where newspapers were received:

"The Post Office Department was created to serve the people of each and all of the United States, and not to be used as the instrument of their destruction. None of the papers detained have been forwarded to me, and I cannot judge for myself of their character and tendency; but you inform me that they are, in character, the most inflammatory and incendiary—and insurrectionary in the highest degree.' By no act or direction of mine, official or private, could I be induced to aid, knowingly, in giving circulation to papers of this description, directly or indirectly. We owe an obligation to the laws, but a higher one to the communities in which we live, and if the FORMER be perverted to destroy the LATTER, it is PATRIOTISM to DISREGARD them."

That was democracy in the days of Gen. Jackson—and it is democracy now.

Senator Stark.

In this last summer Mr. Stark made the following declarations:

That "Mr. Lincoln was the traitor, not Jeff. Davis."

That "the South had a constitutional right to withdraw from the Union."

That "his sympathies are with the Confederate Government."

That "he owed no allegiance to Mr. Lincoln's damned abolition concern."

That the government "was unworthy the support of any American citizen."

That this man should be pressed upon the Governor for the appointment of Senator, can only be explained by the belief that they approve of his known hostility to our government and his wishes for the success of the Southern rebellion.

The party who sanction the appointment of Stark to the Senatorship, would, if in their power, place Oregon in hostility to the general government. They will do this if they can carry the next election in this State.—The scenes we have witnessed in Maryland, Missouri and Virginia, will in all human probability, be seated here—unless the rebellion within that time is crushed out.

The Corvallis Union is one of the lowest secession papers to be found. In that paper of the 18th, the editor thus heads its eastern news in large type—

"That Hour has Come! Aother 'Rebel' Victory! The U. S. Army REPULSED at Leesburg!!"

In the same paper of the 25th,—the eastern news is preceded by this flaring head—

More from the Naval Expedition---Beaufort not taken---Retreat of Hunter from St. Louis.

If the democrats at the east had this editor in charge, they would relieve him of his powers to insult the government that protects him.

Letter from Ireland—No Secessionists There.

A member of a business house in Dublin, under date of September 30, thus writes to a citizen of St. Louis:

"I am glad to know that yourself and firm have escaped, so far, the horrors of this terrible war, and sincerely hope that our good old city will be preserved inviolate from the tread of traitors' feet. Let me say to you, that the mass of feeling here in Britain is on the side of the Government, and I am persuaded, if enlistments were permitted in Ireland, 500,000 men would enroll in two months, in the army of the United States.—The final result of this atrocious rebellion is certain, as the existence of a superintending Divine power, whose attributes are justice and truth.

History holds no parallel for so wanton, wicked and causeless war as the present—in a nation where liberty was of the broadest kind, and the people really the rulers. Keep up a firm faith and an unfailing hope, for the prayers and wishes of the civilized world are with you, and the maledictions of mankind are against that fratricidal section of men who rushed headlong into war, regardless alike of reason, right or liberty—who trampled on the sacred principles of that Constitution which were framed by the purest patriotism and philanthropy, and those rights which were purchased by the blood of good and great men. Such is crime that calls to Heaven—such a treason that invokes the inevitable "Nemesis" through all time, to avenge and punish it—such a shame that ages of repentance will not wipe out. But the result, I say, is sure. This baptism of blood will be followed by a resurrection of freedom into—I trust and pray—an immortal life among the purified people of America."

Well spoken. The Irish heart here will beat in response to these sentiments.

TEXAS MARAUDERS CAPTURED.—The Rocky Mountain News (published at Denver, Colorado Ter.) of the 28th Oct. states, that an express courier from Ft. Wise, had just arrived with dispatches from Gov. Gilpin, to the following effect:

On Friday of last week, a band of marauders calling themselves Texan Rangers, forty in number, surrounded a train of ammunition wagons, near Ft. Wise, and demanded its surrender. The men in charge of the wagons prepared for defence, and dispatched a messenger to the Fort for assistance: a detachment of cavalry under Capt. Long was sent out in pursuit of the guerillas, and succeeded in capturing thirty-nine men and fifty-two head of stock. All are now safely confined at the Fort. When the courier left, a cavalry force had been sent out after another party of secessionists, known to be prowling in the neighborhood. Stolen stock was found in the possession of the captured band, and identified. The prisoners are known to be a portion of McKee's company. Our private opinion is, that their career will be as brief as it has been ignominious.

OREGON STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—ITS FINANCIAL CONDITION.—Receipts at the late Fair, $1,446 17; expenses of the Society, including amount paid for premiums, $1,200 67—cash in Treasury, $275,50.

The Statesman says that nineteen volunteers were enrolled in Salem last week.

Circuit Court.—State of Oregon vs. J. G. Houston—indictment for larceny on steamboat. Jury returned verdict of not guilty.

State of Oregon vs. Lyle, Stark, Olmstead and others. Indictment for setting up gambling device on steamer Julia. Dismissed on demurrer.

State of Oregon vs. Shepherd & Murphy. Indictment for setting up gambling device. Dismissed on demurrer.

State of Oregon vs. Kate Moreland and Matilda Collins. Indictment for keeping house of ill fame. Jury trial—verdict, not guilty.

New Agent for Steamer Cortes.—We are informed that Jno. M. Cracken, Esq., of the firm of Richards & McCracken, received from Messrs. Holliday & Flint the appointment as Agent for the steamer Cortes, at this city.

To Mariners.—Several of our principal streets in the Third Ward are now in a navigable condition.

No Paper.—No paper will be issued from this office to-morrow, but should we receive later telegraphic dispatches, we will issue an extra.

No Court To Day.—The Circuit Court has adjourned till to-morrow morning.

Those wishing to enjoy a good old Thanksgiving Dinner, will do well to call at Gunsel & Hill's Restaurant to-day at one o'clock, where they will find fat turkeys and pigs served up in superb style.

Important Sale.—There will be sold at public auction in this city on the 21st of December next, by auction, for cash, lots 1, 2, 3 and 4, of block 47, being the east half of said block fronting 3d street, between Washington and Stark streets.

The Telegraph.—Mr. I. C. Strong, the telegraph man, is on his way to this city with his family. It is understood that he will proceed at once to the completion of the telegraph line to Yreka.

New Steamer.—The Mountaineer says: The Oregon Steam Navigation Company are about to build a new boat specially designed to navigate the waters of the Upper Columbia and Snake river. The boat is to be built at the Des Chutes, and will be of very light draught of water, with great breadth of beam, and will be propelled by an engine of great power. A boat of this description, it is thought, can run to Lewiston throughout the season.

Telegraphic Dispatches.

We are instructed to publish the following:

Yreka, Nov 16, 1861.

H. L. Pittock, Esq.—Please publish your Telegraphic Reports thus: "Reported expressly for the Oregonian, Statesman, and Sentinel." These are the only papers that take the reports from me regularly.

C. A. THOMAS.

The London Times on the Chances of the Struggle.—The London Times has an article giving a view rather exaggerated than otherwise, of the force of the United States on the Potomac. It says:

The federal army is now undoubtedly far superior in numbers to that of its opponent. The twenty millions of Northerners have put in the field a force which though exaggerated by patriotism or policy, is still one of the most imposing that ever was gathered under the banner of a State.

The Times also says the South "can never hope to equal its opponents in the number of men," and that its inferiority is still more important in the matter of means and materials of war. It says also of the blockade, and the coming test struggles:

The coast is sealed except to a few clever seamen commanding fast sailing vessels, and the skill for fabricating arms must be slowly acquired with the enemy at the gates.

The chances are, therefore, that the Southern States are about to undergo a severe trial of their strength and resolution.

Regarding the capture of Lexington, the Times says, "We do not attach much importance to this outlying warfare." It declares it "impossible that Missouri can ever belong to the South," and that "the real battle will be fought in Virginia and along the coast."

The Sacramento Union says:

"The endorsement of Stark by the Portland Advertiser was quite enough to prove his Secessionism to all who have happened to see that feeble exponent of the peace cause."

pression, the blue is emblematical of perseverance, vigilance, and justice, while the whole speaks for the Union, "one and inseparable." The rules as to the size of the flag are, that its length be one and a-half its breadth, and the blue jack, with the stars, be square, occupying the space of six stripes. Of all the national flags in existence, it is, to the unprejudiced eye of taste, the most lovely banner that ever floated upon the breeze. And long may it wave, as it has ever since it was unfurled, unsullied and triumphant.
